Tom - Physiotherapist

"I have connected to Northam and physiotherapy on a much more meaningful level."

Going rural will give you a huge step ahead. You get exposed to such a wide range of conditions, diseases, and injuries that you don't get in the metro area. Every day, every weekend is different!

IBPF offers me constant personal and professional growth and opportunities, and encourages me to push the boundaries and be innovative. I feel IBPF continues to give me opportunities to become an expert in my profession, and I feel that my professional opinion has been heard and valued from the start of my career here.

One of my main attractions to IBPF was the opportunity to learn the Ridgeway Method which continues to excite me! In short, the Ridgeway Method is based on neuroscience research and aims to solve the cause of the problem, so results are rapid and long lasting. Learning and coming to be competent in this method has been the most rewarding aspect of my career development.

To put the culture of Northam into two words, I'd say teamwork and friendship. The people of Northam are infectiously passionate about the town so much so that I couldn't resist getting involved at the local football club.

The country lifestyle and IBPF's culture and drive for excellence is what keeps me here. I have connected to Northam and physiotherapy on a much more meaningful level and I love that I am able to see the rewards and outcomes of my work in the community.
